Mountain Goat Special Permits

Application Submission Period: April 23 - midnight on May 23, 2018

These hunts are for special permit holders only. See pages 12-13 for instructions on how to apply.

Hunting licenses for mountain goat, moose and bighorn sheep do not have to be purchased unless you are selected for a special hunt permit. Licenses must be purchased by the deadline established (15 day minimum) or the permit will be deemed void and offered to the next ranking applicant. Successful applicants are advised to read their notice of selection carefully and be mindful of the deadline to purchase their license.

Be advised that goat hunts are physically challenging, often requiring travel to remote areas.

Who May Apply:

Mountain Goat Category: Anyone, except those who have previously harvested a mountain goat in Washington State after 1998

Conflict Reduction Category: Anyone, except those who have previously harvested a mountain goat in Washington State after 1998

Raffle and Auction Permits: Anyone may apply every year

Bag Limit:

One adult goat of either sex with horns 4 inches or longer WDFW strongly encourages hunters to refrain from shooting nannies, except in conflict reduction hunts. Although nannies can be legally taken by permit holders, mountain goat populations are very sensitive to removal of adult females

Goat hunters: Please review the educational material sent you, and make all efforts to harvest a billy. In the East Olympic Goat-Conflict Reduction hunts the harvesting of any goat is encouraged. There may be relatively few goats in these hunt units

Mountain Goat Special Permit Hunts:

In addition to the mandatory inspection and marking of your harvested mountain goat, you will owe one hunting activity report for EACH special permit awarded.

Notes: A hunter who kills a mountain goat in Washington MUST present the head with horns attached for inspection within 10 days to a WDFW Regional or District office or a location designated by a Department representative. Call a WDFW Regional or District office to schedule an appointment with a biologist for inspection. Inspection does not substitute for Mandatory Hunter Reporting (see page 6). For mountain goats, both are required. After inspection, the head/horns of a lawfully harvested mountain goat in Washington may be kept for personal use.

Gender Identification Testing: Applicants drawn for a permit may only purchase their license after successfully completing the WDFW online Mountain Goat gender identification training. The training may be completed on paper at WDFW regional offices if internet is unavailable.
