

From: John Maguire
To: FS-comments-pacificsouthwest-stanislaus
Subject: Stanislaus over snow access
Date: Tuesday, September 11, 2018 7:24:07 AM

Nothing is so spectacular as getting you and your family on sleds going by lake alpine lodge, the lake covered in a blanket of snow. (No you don't ride over it I tell the kids) Cruise up to inspiration point stop for morning coffee and family talk with the kids. Different views on what is going on in there lives stretch a bit look at the gorgeous view head out to mosquito lake then pacific valley check out the beautiful views east and west of sierras.

Drop down into hermit valley use the facilities. After the hairpin turn keep your eyes open for bloomfield meadow stop and wait for pops to catch up. Then off to Garndner meadow and lake highlands. This is where everybody plays ,talks,takes in scenery. After a little follow the leader through the meadow teach some sidehilling techniques have a little lunch. Turn around head back to base do it again in reverse.

PLEASE don't change what we have been doing for so many years. We have been riding here since our kids were little they are now in there 30's and 40's. Want to keep this going for many more generations. All the people we have brought out say they would have never seen such beauty if not for our sleds bringing them out. We are also environmentalist we know we don't make a negative impact on the ground as we are usually 10 feet above it .

THANK YOU FOR YOUR TIME

John Maguire

Sent from Mail for Windows 10