I am not a rider of snow mobiles but I am a lover of nature and an avid snow hiker. I don't see any reason for limiting the use of snow machines in this area. The region has been well maintained by riders and has been shown a tremendous amount of respect. Any time I run into a rider, they first ask "how am I doing?" This is a small amount of re-assurance for someone like myself adventuring alone. The use of machines on top of the snow is a non-destructive and non-evident use of the land. I do not see any benefits by limiting the available lands to such users.
