I don't feel the need for a permit system. Yes there are a lot of people using the rivers and lakes, but not bad enough to warrant a permit system. My family and friends float the northfork from ford to polebridge and Big creek to blankenship. Mostly ford to polebridge and we encounter very few people maybe a rafter or two. Sometimes we come on to a group having lunch or taking a break. But not boat to boat like e Falls to old steel bridge. We also float the southfork from cedar flats to the reservoir. Some days you see rafters sometimes not. Our experience with other rafters has always been great. People out there enjoying the rivers beauty and having fun. Haven't had any bad experiences. I feel a permit system is more government intrusion into our lives. How you gonna pay for this?
