"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern:

The nation's public lands, like the Tongass National Forest, are our legacy to future generations of Americans and should be preserved and protected as such, not opened to exploitation and abuse by private interests for their own profit. Furthermore, the Tongass and forests like it are the lungs of our planet, inhaling dirty, polluting carbon dioxide and exhaling life-giving oxygen. Logging the Tongass would release the carbon dioxide it has trapped, threatening our very survival.

For these compelling reasons, I strongly urge you to oppose the irresponsible, reckless opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity and a threat to our environment. "To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

I have personally spent time enjoying the solitude of one of the Forest Service cabins within the Tongass National Forest. There are so few places left where you can spend time in such a beautiful and isolated setting. Please preserve that for future generations.

"To whom it may concern,

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

The American people have spoken loudly and often in opposition to the opening of even one acre, let alone 10 million acres, of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. There is no justification for this action other than the pressure applied and bowed to from extraction industries. "To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

It is appalling at how Trump views our most iconic wild places, that belong to the people and not to him. We the people are disgusted at how Trump is running this country like his reality show, and not as a chief and commander who respects our lands and laws. We need our government agencies to stand up to Trump and make sure that our lands stay protected, and not destroyed. Trump is abusing his powers to please his special interest groups so he can be re-elected.

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

Protect Tongass National Forest

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

These lands must be protected and I urge the agency to take action to block this destructive proposal. We must save this world from destruction so that our children and grandchildren have an ecologically sound world to live in. Not protecting our forests is unconscionable

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

The "Deep State" (Civil Service) for decades dragged its feet on promulgating policies and programs meant to catch up with forestry ecology science. Time for today's civil servants to use the momentum of their institution to anchor the ship to the rocks as the hard-blowing winds of Hair Furor chaotically threaten to capsize it.

I do not urge you, I beg you, and I call you to your higher self to RESIST the opening of millions acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects.

I have never made the journey from my home state of Oregon to experience the Tongass firsthand, but I was immensely privileged two decades ago to hear about it from a USFS delegation from the Tongass that visited us (with Drs. Dave Perry and Jerry Franklin) in Southern Oregon. I heard the reverence for the Tongass in the voices of the Tongass foresters as they drew from the lessons of Forest management here, reflecting out loud how it motivated them to not let the Tongass go the way of the vast majority of our Oregon forests -- to not let the Tongass degrade and then face the challenges of putting an ecosystem back together without all the pieces.

You know even better than I that the Tongass is not only the crown jewel of our National Forest system, and thus worthy of the utmost protection for that reason alone, but that opening it up to logging and mining beyond what has already occurred would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity, iconic species, some of the most ancient specimens in the world, and (if you are not already aware) that it is a storehouse/refuge of fungi extinct or nearly everywhere else in the world that are sources of substances that will be this century's miracle medicines, as the fungi that produce them actively respond to mutating pathogens by keeping apace them.

And let's not forget that the Tongass also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

What's more, beyond its natural beauty and cultural importance, the Tongass Forest is one of the world's best climate defenses. The old trees store nearly 10-12 percent of all carbon consumed by America's national forests -- and it's Alaska's first defense against the worsening climate crisis.

Protect Alaska, protect yourselves, protect the webs of life as we know it on this planet -- Protect the Tongass!

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

At a time when science tells us that we must take immediate steps to curb emissions that are driving climate change, the last thing we should be doing is opening up new areas to extractive industries.

We should leave forests intact not only because they sequester carbon but also because they are ecosystems that support biodiverse wildlife. With so many species at risk of extinction, we must preserve spaces for them to live. The Tonga's National Forest is one such irreplaceable place and I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. Protect Tongass National Forest

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

Please Protect Tongass National Forest

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

Don't give away our national treasure.

"To whom it may concern,

The Tongass belongs to all the people and the animals that call it home. It does not belong to logging companies and mining companies to pillage. Don't give it away. We desperately need it as a carbon sink and the last refuge for many animals.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

Opening Tongass to Roadless Logging is Ecological Madness

"To whom it may concern,

I implore you to reject the request from the Alaska state government to nullify the vital protections for roadless areas in the Tongass National Forest. Eighteen years ago, the Forest Service came to the long-overdue but morally obvious conclusion that all remaining roadless forests are precious beyond economic measure, and that their highest and best use is to remain biologically intact. Since then, intact virgin forests have only become scarcer, both nationally and in the Tongass, and the moral case for their protection has only become stronger. For the Forest Service to even momentarily entertain this astoundingly selfish request from the Alaska state government is a gross abdication of your responsibility to the public interest.

These roadless forests are national treasures, whose biological value vastly outweighs the value of any timber that will be extracted from it. This exchange of an immensely verdant, kaleidoscopic biological treasure for a low-value commodity of lumber pulp is the most lopsided, unholy transfiguration of treasure to commodity, that a myopic human conscience has ever undertaken. It is heartbreaking to see the Forest Service, after making its belated transition toward an ecologically sustainable management model, regress to the status of on-call service providers to the highly subsidized local timber racket. The Tongass is once again being subordinated, by transparently corrupt political authorities in Washington, to the parochial demands of local politicians who direct this mercantilist arrangement. The Forest Service's statutorily and morally demanded service to the public interest is being cynically discarded.

For decades, the Tongass staff managed its writ as a private lumber and pulp fiefdom for a handful of timber mills, supporting economically marginal operations. An unfathomably verdant and sublime national treasure was liquidated for the petty, subsidized self-engorgement of a handful of mill owners and a small employment cohort, even by rural standards. The Tongass was treated as a world apart from the expectations of morally sane management that Americans demanded of the Forest Service in the continental US. Mercifully, the 2000 Roadless Area Protection Rule brought a cease-fire upon America's only temperate rainforest, in recognition of the immense biological value that had been concealed and ignored by local interests. The Federal Register notice for this NOI states,

"The Department and Forest Service believe that current timber harvest and road construction/reconstruction restrictions can be adjusted for the Tongass National Forest in a manner that meaningfully addresses local economic and development concerns while balancing roadless area conservation needs."

This is patent nonsense that requires willful blindness, both to the plight of the Tongass forest ecosystem, and to the minuscule economic benefit from reinstating the roadless, old-growth logging program of the Forest Service's sordid past. The salmon fisheries alone, sustained by the spawning and natal grounds of the Tongass's clear, oxygen-saturated streams, exceed the pathetic commodity value of any lumber or pulp that could be ripped from it. There exists no remotely conceivable cost-benefit analysis, by which further bulldozing and logging of the Tongass's roadless forests could yield a net benefit even to Alaska, much less to the cumulative American interest, on whose behalf the Forest Service ostensibly is employed.

If the request of Alaska is granted, to rescind the protections for roadless areas enacted almost 20 years ago, the timber barons on the Tongass staff would resume a maniacal, wonton schedule of forest liquidation, nullifying the progress that the Forest Service has made in improving the management of the Tongass. For decades, the federal government sold this treasure for the pettiest, most criminally wasteful use as mere pulp and lumber to local mills with uniquely subsidized arrangements with the Forest Service. While most of southeast Alaska's citizens, and most avowedly the subsistence communities who depend on fishing and hunting, have relegated such liquidation logging to the past, a small commercial clique with sway over Alaska's Congressional delegation and governor's office clings to a dream of resurrecting their logging entitlements. You must reject this blatant attempt at theft of our common treasure.

By offering to resurrect roadless area timber sales, the Forest Service is retarding the economic diversification of the Alaska panhandle toward a more sustainable resource base. The history of the Tongass is fraught with battles against powerful timber companies that converted these forests, at taxpayer expense, into their own private riches. The communities of Southeast Alaska have made admirable progress in moving away from the horrific old days of ancient forest liquidation of the 70's and 80's, toward a more stable, sustainable relationship to the Tongass. The 2010 transition plan promised a more enlightened, sustainable, ecologically compatible management system for the Tongass to complement and encourage this socioeconomic progress, and rescission of the Roadless Rule would abolish that promise.

Continued roadless, old-growth logging also explicitly ignores the overriding national interest in protecting this critical component of Earth's life-support system. The Tongass is home to a large portion of the ancient forest remaining in American jurisdiction, and its destruction would constitute a heinous abdication of America's responsibility to maintain Earth's life-sustaining capacities of oxygen production, carbon sequestration, and nutrient cycling. The Forest Service appears blissfully unaware of this urgent need to maintain the Tongass's immense stores of carbon that will terribly exacerbate global warming if they are turned to pulp, oxidized and desiccated under the open sky. Our planet is already losing a terrifying amount of its forest cover. The US government must maintain the extremely high-biomass stands of the Tongass on every last acre that it yet controls, and not transfer them to timber interests who disavow any concern for Earth's habitability.

Again, please withdraw this asinine proposal to resume the invasion of the Tongass roadless forests, and instead fulfill the overdue 2010 transition plan immediately. Like an addict to a pathological substance, the timber industry and its political assets must be broken from their murderous lucre of choice, not granted a prolonged period of denial, resistance, and rationalization while our national treasure is demolished. The Forest Service must not spend another decade feeding the local timber barons upon the last roadless old-growth in the Tongass, during which they will agitate for further delay and ultimate return of the Tongass to the legal status of a pulp plantation. Only a complete affirmation of Forest Service commitment to protect all remaining roadless areas and old-growth can align Tongass management with the interests of all Americans who own these public lands, and all humans who breathe oxygen from the Tongass. Thank you for your attention to this urgent issue.

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

PLEASE DON'T DOOM US ANY MORE THAN WE ALL READY ARE. PLEASE BE ON THE FIRST LINES OF DEFENSE AND SEEK ALTERNATIVE OPTIONS.

These lands must be protected and I urge the agency to take action to block this destructive proposal.

"To whom it may concern,

I strongly urge you to oppose the opening of 10 million acres of land in Alaska's Tongass National Forest for mining and logging projects. This would severely compromise our last remaining truly wild forest and be a huge blow to biodiversity. These lands are home to pacific salmon, iconic bald eagles, southern resident orcas, and even a 1000-year-old tree! It also contains the traditional homelands of the Tlingit, Haida and Tsimshian Peoples.

These lands must be protected and I urge the agency to take action to block this destructive proposal.
