professional, I strongly object to the proposal to reduce protections from resource extraction for The Tongass National Forest. The environmental value of this old-growth forest is far higher than that of any temporary sop to the logging industry; the Tongass is far more than the sum of its parts. Converting everything precious that we have into money is suicide. Money is a concept, an idea, not something you can eat, live in, live on, breath. Our natural resources took hundreds of billions of years to create, yet we can erase all of that in a few months, with nothing to show but a change in banks asset sheet. We are a species going extinct, and we are too stupid to realize it.

In addition, disturbing that forest will upset the natural balance and threaten clean water, salmon, wildlife--all which are so very important to keep for food as well as for clean air & water and the chance to see wildlife in their natural habitat alive and up-close. The tourist trade will go down drastically which will not be good for Alaska and it's government.

When you're good, fine: bad, fine; in the middle, fine. FINE: F = feelings / I = + inside / N = not / E = expressed. What really gets me is when President Trump (CHUMP) used the fine word when the woman got run over in Charleston and he said that there are fine people here (the KKK) and fine people here (non KKK).

The loss of old-growth forest will intensify the effects of climate change. First Trump gutted the Endangered Species Act, and now, at a time where forests are burning all over the world, he's instructing Secretary of Agriculture Sonny Perdue to exempt Alaska's 16.7-million-acre Tongass National Forest from nearly 20-year-old logging restrictions, endangering the forest's biodiversity, and beautiful wildlife — like wolves and grizzly bears. This latest attack on rare wildlife, cultural heritage, and lush forests is one of many the “Extinction Administration” has claimed will “boost the economy” of Alaska, when less than 1% comes from the logging industry and would potentially impact more prominent sectors like tourism or fishing. This is cashing out at the expense of a climate-critical ecosystem and wildlife. The Tongass National Forest is of global

I am writing to ask that we vote and act as stewards of the Tongass National Forest, not simply as if humans and our insatiable consumption for resources and profit are the only things that matter on this planet. We have already exploited and destroyed so many of our wild and old growth places. Alaska is already being mined and drilled and sought after for more of the same. Please, please, please work to protect this forest rather than sacrifice it to greed.

Giving away the Tongass for permanent destruction is poor business, and poor deal for America. WORLD of the Tongass National Forest in Alaska! The global importance of this treasure is irreplaceable, unique and absolutely necessary to the soul and life of not only HUMANITY, but also the world's environment. The Tongass National Forest is NOT AVAILABLE for the monetary gain of trump and his logging, mining, oil and gas buddies. Any development of this Forest has permanent and detrimental consequences, for the local people, plant and animal life, the environment and weather of the ENTIRE WORLD! This current attack on wildlife and forests being made under the guise it will boost Alaska's economy-- which benefits only the companies destroying this area--will NOT BENEFIT ANYONE BEYOND THESE INDUSTRIES' BOTTOM LINE. One percent, or less, of economic activity actually comes from the logging industry, is of negligible benefit even to them, and most definitely is not worth the permanent consequences to the environment, the climate and destruction of the soul of the indigenous inhabitants.

Also a help in addressing climate change is reducing dependence on fossil fuel extraction and use. A far superior strategy is increasing technology in support of and dependence of solar and wind energy instead.

The loss of old-growth forest will intensify the effects of climate change. August 6, 2019 Dear Americans, THE PLAGUE Ring around the polls Republicans on their toes Much to disclose Really foes Time to expose..... (published Dec. 1992) I thank the Democrats for all they have done, over the 76 years of my life. We need to speak to the people about Republican hindrance and how they have affected our countries progress and hurt most of our citizens. Starting with, President Obama, we need to inform our citizens;

all Americans, not just to agencies of the Federal Government, or corporations seeking to exploit publicly owned natural resources. Our survival on this planet depends, in part, on the preservation of lands that impact the welfare of humanity. The Tongass National Forest is such a place, and deserves continuing protections, not exploitation for profits. I write in opposition to any plan that opens this public asset to logging, mining, or oil and gas exploration and extraction, and support the protections that are already in place. This latest attack on wildlife and forests has been made under the guise that this will boost Alaska's economy, when only 1% comes from the logging industry, and isn't worth permanent consequences. The Tongass National Forest is of global importance as a carbon sink and wildlife habitat. Without it global warming would be accelerated and the habitat of many animals would be destroyed. This latest attack on wildlife and forests has been made under the guise that this will boost Alaska's economy, yet only 1% of this state's GDP comes from the logging industry. Surely such a minuscule contribution to the economy is not worth the degree of environmental devastation and habitat destruction that logging inevitably leave in its wake. Trump's directive violates the processes outlined in the National Environmental Policy Act. NEPA ensures that major decisions affecting the environment are fact-based, that alternatives are seriously considered, and that decisions are made with public opinion in mind. None of these legally required processes seem to have been adhered to in this latest directive.

Mr. Perdue, I knew when you took your current position that those of us who would like to leave the world better than we found it would have to keep alert. I also do not believe that how I feel about this issue will matter one wit to you. You simply do not care if there is big business and money at the end of whatever you and Trump decide to do. I have grandchildren. Their ancestor came to this country in 1632. Farmers and church builders, soldiers and more farmers and church builders. The land was cherished by them. If we do not cherish and respect what nature does for us each and every day we are doomed to die as a result of our neglect. Just open your eyes and mind and you could, possibly, be a success in your current job instead of a laughing stock and disappointment.

America is fast losing its authority as a global player in preserving what is essential to the survival of our species on this planet. Existing forests, a remnant of what once was a main stay of the Ecosystem that makes all life as we know it possible, needs to be added to not destroyed. By the increasing number of species going extinct Nature is telling us we will not escape the same fate unless we play by the Laws of Nature in a positive way. Pay attention to what

The Tongass National Forest is globally important. Opening it to logging, mining, or oil and gas would have permanent and destructive consequences. The most recent attack on wildlife and forests has been made under the false guise that it will boost Alaskas economy; however, only 1% would come from the logging industry, and it is not worth the permanent negative consequences. Trump's directive is in violation of the process of the National Environmental Policy Act. Opening up The Tongass will only enrich huge corporations, most foreign, who set up shell companies then file bankruptcy once they finish logging, mining or other resource extraction leaving long term pollution and habitat destruction. This harms fisheries and the fishing industry both native and commercial. Plus the government subsidizes this destruction by building roads that further disturb and destroy the environment. The IRREPLACEABLE Tongass National Forest is of global ECOLOGICAL importance, and UNTHINKABLY opening it to TOTALLY UNWARRANTED logging, mining, or oil and gas has VAST permanent, detrimental consequences. This latest INSANELY DESTRUCTIVE attack on wildlife and forests has been made under the BLATANTLY FALSE guise that this RAPE OF THE ENVIRONMENT will, SOMEHOW MAGICALLY, boost Alaska's economy, when AS IS WELL KNOWN, only 1% comes from the logging industry, and isn't, IN ANY WAY WHAT-SO-EVER, worth permanent DEVASTATING consequences. Trump's POLITICALLY-MOTIVATED, SUPPORTER REWARDING directive COMPLETELY violates the process of the National Environmental Policy Act. The Tongass National Forest is America's largest national forest, and most intact forest, with some of the nation's greatest acreage of old-growth, virgin forest. Along with the Great Bear Rainforest of British Columbia, Canada, the Tongass Rainforest provides a critical, massive, and intact habitat for wildlife. At the same time, it is one of the most important natural carbon sinks on the planet, since research is beginning to uncover that temperate rainforests, work primarily in SE Alaska. We've thus experienced many issues with roading and logging in the Tongass National Forest over a 50 year time span. These impacts range from increasing landslides to stream destruction and salmonid habitat destruction, from habitat degradation by invasive plants to damage from inconsiderate and destructive forest users. There are many negative impacts on wildlife from roading and logging, such as easier access and greater incidents of poaching; increasing numbers of "problem bears" entering Sitka neighborhoods; illegal fishing, including wanton killing and wasting examples from Juneau and Sitka; etc. Much deceptive noise has been made about touted (but incorrect) economic benefits of resuming higher levels of road building and logging. Firstly, the USFS loses millions of taxpayer dollars subsidizing logging access. "We The People" pay these bills, and We are tired of it! Logging companies must pay economically positive fees for the privilege of taking timber from the public ferverently urge you to stand against opening up the Tongrass National Forest to any mining, oil or logging interests. This forest is not only a long standing piece of American heritage and beauty, but also a key environmental asset that will protect our planet from the terrible effects of climate change. While it may seem like a good way to boost the economy, once this forest is ripped apart and it resources taken, it will be extremely slow to recover and thus the boost will be short-lived yet leave devastation in it's wake. Furthermore, as you'll see below in this letter, destroying the Tongrass won't really help Alaska economically. Mr. Perdue, I beg you, for the sake of beauty, for the sake of our children for generations to come, and most of all for the sake of the world we share, oppose this destruction! The economy isn't the only factor we need to consider. Our planet is falling apart, and we need to take measures to safeguard the resources we have, and better manage the methods we use to extract those resources. Tongass is in an area that is among the most affected by climate change - thus it is one of the most at risk. We cannot afford that expedite those negative changes in exchange for a quick buck. NO to logging this forest!

allowing logging and mining in the beautiful, incredible Tongass National Forest. Don't you care about nature and wildlife? Have you ever been for a walk in a large forest? There is nothing more inspiring and rejuvenating than being in a place like the Tongass, where it is perfectly quiet and the trees are sooooo tall and the sound of birds chirping and singing is so liltng. Please consider NOT taking a place like the Tongass away from people who love it and cherish its many attributes, especially its silence. This place is unique and should be cherished for its sheer beauty. It should be preserved for many generations to come. Please don't destroy it. Go there and listen. I have personally visited the Tongass National Forest due to its unique ecological value. Its forests serve as a CO2 sink which is needed in this period of accelerated global warming. Destroying it for the short term gain of commercial logging is short sighted and illustrates that the quality of life of mankind is doomed by lack of vision and concern about future generations. Are you the leader of destruction of mankind's future quality of life? If you are, I am sure you will be remember for your arrogance and lack of concern.

The Tongass National Forest in Alaska, is of GLOBAL importance. Opening it to logging, mining, or oil and gas exploration will have a permanent, and detrimental consequences to Alaska and the/OUR environment. This latest attack on wildlife and this forest has been made under the guise that this will boost Alaska's economy, when only 1% comes from the logging industry, and isn't worth permanent consequences. The oil, gas exploration as well as the logging will be detrimental to the land and the wildlife.
Sir, President Trump's directive violates the process and progress of the National Environmental Policy Act. The EPA ensures that major decisions affecting the environment are fact-based, alternatives considered, and are made with public opinion/input in mind. It also violates the very reason for the EPA itself save the environment and wildlife. Sir, you know the loss of this old-growth

Logging old growth forest has a short term benefit of some job creation and some revenue, whereas the long term consequences are enormous. We need this forest to help clean our air and water, which is something that the US Forest Service advocates for. I know this because I also work for the USFS and believe strongly in that part of its mission. There is so little old growth left in the United States, the tourism industry in Alaska is huge partially because of this large intact old growth rain forest. The Tongass National Forest is a irreplaceable National Treasure. Logging, mining, or oil and gas development will inevitably result in detrimental loss of an irreplaceable habitat, affecting both animal life and the forest itself. This loss will have permanent and detrimental consequences, not only to Alaska, but to the whole world. Exploiting this beautiful forest for the sake of a relatively small amount of money is short sighted, and once the exploitation begins there will be no stopping it. A few questions come to mind for President Trump and Governors of our Western States: what does the Division of Forestry, which you oversee, Mr. Secretary, think in regards to lifting the rule for roadless, heavily forested, areas in preservation in Alaska, and by and large our Western most states? If mills, drilling companies, and mining companies, have to ask governors of their states to open up conservation areas what are the methods such companies use when harvesting resources, and are the methods they utilize ecological and sustainable for generations? If unstable methods are identified then, should we be looking at better protocols nationwide for such company practices. Extreme climate

Save the trees so we can breathe!!!!

It is very hard for me to believe that public opinion matters to virtually anyone in politics or the longevity of this planet since it does not directly affect their own person as the damage we allow will likely be seen in its greatest catastrophe after our time because we all have limited time. As a former forester I know how important it is to preserve the temperate rain forest. The short-sighted logging of this forest, simply for money. Even with sustained yield practices, the Tongass will never be the same. Look at other forests such as the Siuslaw. They will never be as productive an ecosystem. PLEASE do not allow logging in this vitally important and breath takingly beautiful part of our precious heritage. There is not a thing we make from wood that cannot be made with some other product. Another product which also creates jobs. I am 71, in my youth I backpacked through Alaska. The sheer beauty and awesome power of this wilderness has given me a lifetime of memories to share. During that summer I saw clear cutting. Nothing we can make out of those trees is worth the loss of their majesty. Please leave our children the joy of this pristine nature driven engine of life.

assholes get to die in a few years and leave us with the mess you're making now. I am a 26 year old who wants to have kids and am worried I might not be able to. Not because of fertility issues but because I don't know what our world will look like in ten years. Less trees will not fix the environment. Stop monetizing all of our natural resources. I don't care about who is leading our country right now, I don't give a fuck about the political climate, I don't care who is to blame for this. Stop making our climate into an issue of politics, because it is not. Politics and climate have nothing to do with each other, and while all you idiots in charge are busy arguing about it, the world continues to die. You have students protesting around the world because of the climate, and meanwhile you idiots got your heads up your asses only caring about yourselves. We are the people who have to live in the world you are creating, and its obvious that neither the democrats nor the republicans care about the American people anymore. It only boils down to money and image.

But my heart, my soul and my Spirit tell me this is wrong and it must stop! I do not go along with these online petitions normally. But this ravaging of this planet is insane. Reuse, repurpose. Go back to the time when America made things to last not to be replaced. That could help with garbage and using up resources needlessly. Put people back to work. I think international trade is great, but import goods that last. Stop the dollar store junk that breaks down and ends up in oceans and landfills. It breaks my heart to know that more of my world is being cut down for greed. I am growing up on an earth with unprecedented pollution, acidifying oceans, and increasingly dangerous natural disasters. The Tongass provides critical habitat for many incredible species that could go extinct within my lifetime. When logged, more carbon will be emitted into an already oversaturated atmosphere, amplifying the aforementioned issues. I am imploring you to halt the plans for logging the Tongass. Please do the right thing for me and for my generation, and for the original peoples of that land.

Between natural causes and carelessness, we have lost and are continuing to lose hundreds of acres of woodlands due to fire alone. Wildfires are burning up oxygen that everyone alive needs to survive. We rely on trees to help give us clean air. I can't tell you anything that you already don't know. Animals and birds have lost their homes, their food sources and a lot have lost their lives. Trees have been planted already to make up for what the fires have destroyed, but they are mostly being replaced with pine trees. Trees with leaves help replenish oxygen. Pine is one of the softer woods that is high in demand so companies can make cheap furniture. It is also one of the more inexpensive woods too. Seems to me, these trees are being planted in two's so while one replaces the one gone but the other to be used for the lumber.

Stop looking for the same resources that are destroying our planet and our relationships with each other. You can make just as much money off of other resources outside of destroying some of the only beautiful land we still have left. Pick another place that we have already used, and instead of using the land to drill for oil, use that land and start research on new, better means. Not only for our environment, but for our relationships with each other. It's time to become a singular population instead of a species that's divided.

I've lived in the forest since I was born, I know no other way to live. I have learned everything about mother earth through teachings of my elders. I know her ways, medicines, and how she is reacting to the corporate industries that are killing her. What they don't know. They are killing their self! I learned to adapt to the changes of mother earth, they can't. Use hemp it will solve those

The ground is covered with unique mosses and cover that if disturbed, would take more than 500 years to replace. There might be untold cures numbers of cures, remedies, beers, foods and more just waiting to be found up there. And they will never be found if wood hungry loggers come through and shave the mountains bare. And for what. We need green on this earth now that the president of Brazil has

My fear is, despite the growing number of jobs this potential logging operation will create, no one is going to care, and despite the increase in jobs, all you will get receive is backlash for the destroyed woodlands. I feel a better move while appoaching the election would be to sign some sort of order of protection insuring the continued safety of Tongas National Forrest. Even if the protection order is only for a few years. In the meantime time the Administration saves some wildlife, looks like everyone's hero, and then they are technically free to do what they want in a few years. the plan should be to rev up tourism in the Tongass National Forrest. Convince people they can't live with out seeing it. Make the trees worth more alive than dead. Or someone needs to catch a Bigfoot up there. Lobbying has the potential to contribute to the democratic process and provide decision makers directly with valuable insights and data. However, without transparency and integrity, it can be used to steer public policies away from the public interest – particularly if a small group of powerful interests use their wealth, power or advantages towards unfair advantages. Long story short, I like President Trump, but he definitely could care about Earth a bit better. We ruin every corner of the planet that we touch. Wildlife there in Alaska needs every different part that exists to survive. That untouched land provides habitat, food and shelter from the cold for thousands upon thousands of animals. Cutting or not cutting down that forest and wrecking all the nature there isn't life and death for us at all. We will be fine without it: they won't.

The Tongass was set aside to be protected in perpetuity, as a WILDERNESS resource and as a wilderness, it is of inestimable value. If you allow it to be pillaged, our children will never forget, nor forgive. We don't own our land as a gift from our ancestors, we borrow it from our children. Save this resource for our children. I lived in S.E. Alaska in logging camps as a child in the late 60's & early 70's. The natural beauty, habitat & wildlife was compromised then by logging. USDA must reject all options except the No-Action Alternative of the Draft Environmental Impact Statement. The Roadless Rule must be upheld. This proposal to rollback Roadless Rule is another attack on wildlife and forests, made under the deception of boosting Alaska's economy. The truth is that the proposal will benefit only the logging industry, and will involve an obscene waste of taxpayer money in the form of subsidies, costs to cleanup the resulting erosion & pollution, untold loss of ecosystem services provided by the Tongass National Forest. The Tongass National Forest provides clean drinking water, provides habitats for thousands of wildlife species, and is the nation's last and largest national temperate rainforest, serving as a valuable carbon sink to mitigate climate change. It is irresponsible to sacrifice the value of these services to the country, which far exceed the paltry gains to the timber industry by devastating the Tongass.

The Tongass National Forest is of global importance, and opening it to logging, mining, or oil and gas has permanent, detrimental consequences. This latest attack on wildlife and forests has been made under the guise that this will boost Alaska's economy, when only 1% comes from the logging industry, and isn't worth permanent consequences. Trump's directive violates the process of the National Environmental Policy Act. NEPA ensures that major decisions affecting the environment are fact-based, consider alternatives, and are made with public opinion in mind. The loss of old-growth forest will intensify the effects of climate change. If we do not do something now there will be no reversal on the damage we have done to the planet.

and diminishing fast. Forests like these are carbon sinks and vital to the ecosystem health and water control in ways that cannot be seen at first glance. Birds, insects, mammals, plants, etc are precious and fill niches we need to keep. Logging might help give the economy a temporary boost, but in the end will degrade the value Alaska truly has. Logging might take a small piece here and small piece there, but where does it stop? Our resources are finite, and we need to keep what we have instead of needlessly using up more and more. to the fact that the large tract of wild land of the Tongass National Forest is a vital ecosystem not only to the animals and plants of the region but of the world, as all rain forests, especially old growth forests are, whether temperate or equatorial. This is not a renewable resource, once harvested this old growth Forest will not exist as it does now, several hundred years to a millennium will be needed to achieve the same result, assuming climate change hasn't affected the world too much by then. If hard woods are desired for furniture I would suggest limiting harvest to younger trees selected by the biologists of the region, or no harvest at all and move to more sustainable practices and materials. The Tongass National Forest is a true treasure of not only the United States, but the world. This Forest does not exist anywhere else in the world. It is unique. We only get once chance to honor and respect this gift given to us by Mother Nature and God, once it's destroyed that's it for a long time, if not forever. Like the equatorial rain forests

The eastern United States once had beautiful old growth forests similar to what you can still find in parts of the Northwest, but we clear cut them. The few areas that were allowed to be reforested are now just small, weaker versions of their previous majesty. It will take thousands of years for them to return to their glory, and that is if we are proactive in protecting them. We have the chance now to continue to opening the Tongass National Forest to road-building and logging. The Tongass is a unique and special wild place, the largest temperate rainforest in the world. It is home to important wildlife, and its pristine waters produce a vast amount of salmon which help support local fishing businesses. The wildlife and untouched landscape drive tourism in the area-- providing jobs and contributing over $1 billion to the Alaska economy. Roadless areas are essential for the forest, wildlife and local economy to thrive. The new proposal doesn't just endanger the Tongass, it also sets a dangerous precedent for our other national forests which also have protections that explicitly ban the building of roads. The Tongass National Forest is also of global importance as its old growth trees are especially good at sequestering carbon. Losing these trees will intensify the effects of climate change. green jewel. of global importance, and opening it to logging, mining, or oil and gas has permanent, detrimental consequences. No President of the United States should unilaterally be able to make crucial decisions, that effect all U. S. Citizens & global citizens, as well, such as tearing out remaining forests, without congressional deliberation with the consult of scientists & economists. Money is not everything & considering money only for every decision makes this world an evil, very unbalanced place. Yes, we'd be richer if we didn't have to feed our children or entertain family & friends, but what a sad shrinking world that would be! Many places that have allowed indiscriminate logging, are paying the price with erosion, lack of living green things to take up the CO2 & release O2 in turn, & no trees to line & protect coastal environments. We need more forests, not less. There is a bumper sticker that says "coexist" which has the symbols for the world's various religions. Beyond religions, we need to coexist with our environment & our fellow members of

It's an utter disgrace to open the Tongass National Forest to more old-growth forest logging. With so little old-growth left, what sense does it make to trash the greatest temperate brsinfkrest in the world? It's obscene that it will use our tax dollars to subsidize this destruction, the worst of the worst in corporate welfare. It barely even produces any jobs, a few hundred jobs for a short time to destroy the heritage of a country of 300 million? It's of global importance too. Oh and it will hurt jobs that could sustain themselves long term such as salmon fishing and tourism. What balance is it when 95% of our public forests are given over to resource extraction? Even more of the richest areas of forest. That violates the founding principle of the national forests. It's sickening greedy and short sighted. And the Young Forest Initiative scam that you are also wasting millions of tax dollars subsidizing in the East, even in NJ!, it a gross violation of public trust.

consider preserving this important ecosystem for future generations to enjoy. We know that there is a lot of false science in favor of monetary interests, and I realize this involves jobs and livelihoods, all things to be taken serious. But there is something at stake here that is just as important, if not more so because it involves our future generations. Nature and its beauty helps us as people reconnect with a greater power. In fact, nature demonstrates that there is a higher power. How could there not, with such wonders the Tongass possesses. But this beauty is intrinsic, and is thus a much harder thing to defend against monetary interests. But has not some of the greatest fights against the hardest odds been worth such a defense? Protecting the redwoods in Northern California is a great example. It was so much money that could've been made, yet they were preserved, huge swathes of land, so that the ecosystem remains intact and healthy. And because of such preservation. Me as in individual who lives in constant fear for our planet, feel that this is a direct insult to our nation and other countries. We need to make it a goal to try and change what we feel is a "normal" life, into what should be a "healthy" life. Not only for humans but for Mother Earth herself as well, this is how it should have been but with a world full of greed and the urge for unfathomable wealth has blinded us from this way of life. The Tongass National Forest is a beautiful majestic piece of our country's national beauty. To allow it to be desecrated and harmed in any way for the sake of a quick buck is disgraceful and short-sighted. You hold the power to do what is right, what is moral, and the responsibility to stand up to those who would do wrong for the sake of convenience or profit. I believe that you have the strength of character to act with integrity in this matter and am trusting you to do so in the interests of our nation and its people's future. Thank you for your time and effort.

I have personally been to and seen the tongas national forest, and consider it to be a wonder of nature. it is beautiful, as a national treasure that should be left alone for wildlife, and for the enjoyment of those who want to visit it. it would be naive to think that logging companies would adhere to sound logging practices in such a remote location. they would most likely take the risk of a handslap fine in the interest of making money, before they performed their operations properly.

Dear Mr. Secretary, I just heard about the proposal to open the Tongass National Forest to economic exploitation. The forest should remain undisturbed instead. By any measure this is a bad deal, to the point that it appears purely corrupt. The Tongass is, by even the most conservative estimates, more valuable if left intact. Allowing private extraction is the same sort of politics that America has come to despise: allowing a few to profit to the detriment of our country. Logging the Tongass will make this great nation a little less grand.

National Forest on my honeymoon trip a few years ago, and would very much like it to still be there on anniversary trips in the future. In addition to the environmental atrocities outlined below, I would imagine the deforestation would also negatively impact tourism dollars spent in the area. Much of the allure of Alaska resides in untouched, protected areas like the Tongass. If those areas are gone, what will be the allure for future generations? I urge you not to give in to the corporate greed that is destroying our great nation, and instead support the people and lands you represent. * * * * *

The Tongass National Forest is of global importance, and opening it to logging, mining, or oil and gas has permanent, detrimental consequences. This latest attack on wildlife and forests has been made under the guise that this will boost Alaska's economy, when only 1% comes from the logging industry, and isn't worth permanent consequences. Trump's directive violates the process of the National Environmental Policy Act. NEPA ensures that major decisions affecting the environment are fact-based, consider alternatives, and are made with public opinion in mind. The loss of old-growth forest will intensify the effects of climate change. Finally, how dare you. Do you ever listen to the negative self-talk when you look in the mirror? Because you should try it some more.

Parks and Forests were set aside for preservation for the American people of today, and of many generations to come. To invade any of these National Parks or Forests with commercialization (i.e.: mining, logging, cultivation Of any form) would be an undermining of the very purpose of which these great Parks and Forests were originally formed. To undermine this purpose is to greatly disgrace the very element of what it means to be an American. National Parks and Forests are an American-made organization, Yosemite being the world's first National Park ever formed. Before Yosemite, National Parks and Forests were not yet an idea held by any other nation. As precious as they are to our Great Nation, we damaged the ecosystems of many National Parks before we knew the value of preserving them. When Roosevelt formed the Tongass National Forest, he knew that with it, we finally had the chance to "do it right" so to speak. DO NOT FORGET why America's Great National Parks and Forests were originally preserved. Do not

The Tongass National Forest is of global importance. It is not our ecosystem to continuously destroy. It belongs to so much wildlife, all of which threaten displacement or face the possibility of extinction. The South China Tiger is an example of a species having nowhere to go after habitat loss. They only reside in captivity now, with very small numbers. Let's not kill all of our forests. Let's preserve them for generations to come.

These old forests are enormous ecosystems that hold countless amount of life. It has taken millions of years for these forests to develop and help to reduce human impact on the environment by absorbing Carbon emissions! It's our responsibility to realize the importance of these forests and not destroy them! Once it's gone it will take a very very long time to come back, if it ever does. Please President Trump as a Republican voter and supporter! Do not disturb the few natural untouched forests we have left!

My first summer out of high school I spent in the Tongass Forest. It's a beautiful forest boasting impressive trees and quiet glens that encourage introspection. It would be a major loss to see it decimated. If its resources are to be used, let's do it in a limited, informed and judicious way, while preserving the major expanse of the forest. The Tongass National Forest is of huge importance to the world, so opening it to logging, mining, or oil will be the most horrible attack on wildlife and forests. This move supposedly is helping the Alaskan economy, when, in truth, only a tiny part of income comes from logging. This does not bode well for the hellish consequences as a result. Trump's choice goes against the National Environmental Policy Act. This act makes sure that major decisions affecting the environment are fact-based, considering alternatives, and are made with public opinion in mind. This has not been the case. The loss of this important forest will multiply the effects of climate change many times over. We all have to be good stewards of the land.

Hello I'm Sarah Potter and I believe this is wrong this is why I'm signing this petition because I value nature and I believe in humanitarian values and this is a very selfish idea due too many reasons. 1. the animals need a place too love just like humans.2. nature is too beautiful too take advantage.3 there's alot too come out of nature that God gave us like,peace of mind serenity and joyful thoughts of these alaskians like I'm here too put an end too his ridiculous behavior. So therefore if any one agrees sign the Petition not just for justice but for your knowledge between right and wrong thank you so much .??

no one should be the only one to say what happens to the Forest I know that is just specifically for one Forest at this point, but there's been an issue with this for many many generations and I know it might not be a priority for some, however eventually it'll come to play that we have screwed our world up to a end. So for some people to just say let's just destroy it all anyways it's already messed up as stupid excuse It's just about money and power and all that crap that people want to exploit, our resources for because the government think it's necessary to get more money well that's not the point if our world is destroyed in the process then we don't have anything to fight for in the end anyways do we. So I don't believe that anyone should have a say unless they are willing to help everyone on this earth to try and save the world together not as a nation, but as people that living and dieing here , so who really believes this to be true, should go against people that insist on destroying our Earth even further just for money. That is why I'm saying no to this NEPA ensures that major decisions affecting the environment are fact-based, consider alternatives, and are made with public opinion in mind. The loss of old-growth forest will intensify the effects of climate change. Also without rainforests and other environments, the world as we know it will drastically change. The ecosystem is a delicate thing. Like any living organism, it will fight back to protect itself from threats to its wellbeing. That threat is the human race trying to bulldoze and pollute it. I ask you to think about your children and future descendants. Do you want them living in a post apocalyptic world were humans are riddled with disease and destitute?

The Tongass National Forest is of global importance, and opening it to logging, mining, or oil and gas has permanent, detrimental consequences. This latest attack on wildlife and forests has been made under the guise that this will boost Alaska's economy, when only 1% comes from the logging industry, and isn't worth permanent consequences. Trump's directive violates the process of the National Environmental Policy Act. NEPA ensures that major decisions affecting the environment are fact-based, consider alternatives, and are made with public opinion in mind. The loss of old-growth forest will intensify the effects of climate change. Trump may be the president of the United States but he doesn't own it. We the people do. These places are pristine and irreplaceable and you all do not have the right to destroy them for short-lived monetary gain. Remember, your grandchildren will resent you for this.

Too many times has the world's leaders put the road to profit ahead of the road to the preservation of the land we stand upon and the seas we protect. The end result being the deaths of countless species of Flora and fauna and creatures from all around the world whether the cause be deforestation, pollution, experimentation, or sport. The point being that you have the option to better this world and ensure the future generations that they'll have a world to come home to after you've departed from this life or leaving the legacy of destruction and death for the sake of financial profit and knowing you fucked us as a species and the rest of the planet due to insane neglect of the world that is the reason why your ass existed in the first place... You have your option, now make your choice. Just realize the weight of both your options before fuck us over even more.

We will save the earth, we will fight back. It will be very hard though, we need to all come together as a nation of free Americans who make decisions for our country and we will not let the 1% control this country anymore just so they can make more money. I recommend following the footsteps of people like Elon Musk and Bernie Sanders because these two people are really trying to change the world for the better. Both of their ambitions are high, but they speak truth and it's not about the money or "economy" for them.... We will be fighting this war for a long time... We need more love in this world, more honesty and responsibility for our decisions as a species.

We are beyond this--beyond clinging to old ways of developing old resources that involves destruction of old, natural places; of critical habitat; of swathes of land that should remain as untouched by human hands as possible. Roosevelt felt the need to establish national park land and we shouldn't walk backwards and away from that idea. The idea that wild places should be protected--some things should remain sacred. I am an Alaskan and I don't want to sacrifice long term stability and balance for short term resource gain. It is unwise.

an Indian reservations land sacred? Do u remember how even though tons of people signed the petition, nothing changed. The media played out the story as if the reservation and the countries citizens had an actual say in the matter. When in reality their efforts were for nothing because the petition failed and the oilline was created and sure enough the media avoided the reality of the cruel situation. The fact that the oilline went through anyway was never broadcasted as it should have been. People are tired of living in ignorant bliss. The world needs change and what little land we have left needs to be preserved and left unharmed by man. The citizens of this country deserve to have their voices heard. I also oppose all appropriation of national parks that belong to the United States people for use as recreation and relaxation, and all national lands in reserve for future development. It is not time to use that land and we need to hold on to it just as if it were an emergency savings account. Thank you,

America is it being a country which is wild and free and that is what inspired President Theodore Roosevelt to set aside so much wilderness as protected for posterity (and he was a Republican). He understood that its impossible for men to remain manly without places that test the mettle and that we would become a weak people should we all be denied access to true, unspoiled wilderness. And you know he was right because just look at our society today. As such, we need you, President Trump, to protect such places for our sake as an American society as well as for the sake of protecting God's Creation. Eventually we have to stop destroying what we have left. The way we are cutting down our forests for profit doesn't look well for our children's future. For anyones. Take a minute to google the statistics for this planet at the rate we are going. I hope I'm not alive to see any of it come true and I hope my kids aren't either...

The Tongass National Forest is of global importance, and opening it to logging, mining, or oil and gas has permanent, detrimental consequences. This latest attack on wildlife and forests has been made under the guise that this will boost Alaska's economy, when only 1% comes from the logging industry, and isn't worth permanent consequences. Trump's directive violates the process of the National Environmental Policy Act. NEPA ensures that major decisions affecting the environment are fact-based, consider alternatives, and are made with public opinion in mind. The loss of old-growth forest will intensify the effects of climate change. Trump doesn't care about our planet and it's going to kill us all!

We the People of the United States are aware of the Money-hungry warmongering and resource wars that our government officials endorse... Eventually every Political figure in Washington DC shall feel Guillotine Steel against the rear of their Cranial Swivel... Sincerely an Angry Citizen. P.S. The Taxes alone today would've gotten each US Politician killed in our country's early years.

change is irrelevant. If trees are removed faster than they are replaced it causes and imbalance in the world and there is already enough of that every day. Humans consume more resources than we replace every day. It is disgusting. Leave national lands, that belong to the people of this country alone! There is not one sustainable logger on this planet. They are destructive. They will destroy the understory while destroying this habitat for thousands of animals. Opening the Tongass National Forest to logging, mining, or oil and gas clearly demonstrates Trump's commitment to corporate greed at the expense of the American people. Currently, this protection benefits both wildlife habitat, the environment, and all people as a protected resource we can enjoy. Allowing these companies to use it for their personal gain at our expense is despicable.

We need a the trees we can get! The balance of our world is more than just climate control. The forest is home to many animals that are running out of homes as it is. If we keep cutting down our forests for their wood, eventually we won't have any wood to claim and many animals will have died for nothing.
