As a member of the healthcare community for well over 30 years, I pay attention when the World Health Organization designates Glyphosate as a "probable carcinogen to humans". Its use is currently banned or severely restricted in over 20 countries yet we are still applying it, over + over on the same areas. I must strongly oppose the use of glyphosate containing herbicides as described in the Foothills Landscape Project. The project vision you describe is admirable; other methods to achieve it need to be found + implemented. Has 'All Down' organic herbicide been tried here? It is used widely in Miami + Key West I understand.. 2 areas very sensitive to water contamination..

Thank you for considering my perspective.
