Subject: Shoshone national forest

I would like to comment and say my family and I use a lot of the Shoshone national forest for recreation. We snowmobile in the winter in the Beartooth ranges and shutting down any portion of that would be detrimental to where we like to travel. Too many of our, the public lands, are being shut down to access. I know hiking and horseback is still accessible for now but how long will that last? There are people whose only means of ever seeing some of that country is by snowmobile and shutting that access down to them is not only reckless but irresponsible. Please leave things alone and quit taking away OUR lands.
Sincerely,
Dallas Beardall
