Dear Mrs Jackson,

As a professional driller. I've worked on numerous mine sites & exploration projects across north america. In 2016, I began working at Stis nine with Midas Gold, now Perpetua Resources. What sets the stibnine project apart is definitely its people. The perpetua geologists & field staff care much more about the environment & environmental protections than typical mine employees. I recall that in the daily environmental inspections of the rigs that the enviro geos would find something for us to improve upon. Perpetua's commitment to environmental protection measures & spill prevention rivals that of the Operating mines of major international mining companies, but with the important distinction that Perpetuas employees actually care about the environment, not just following the rules. This is why I am confident that this is the right Company with the right plan for Idaho.

Sincerely,

Richard Johnson
