

This is a very important project for the supply of critical and precious minerals produced in the United States. Perpetua has assembled the right team to move forward with this very challenging project and has demonstrated commitment to stewardship. The project has been reviewed extensively by 3rd party industry professionals, and Perpetua has been eager to pursue the most robust environmental protection measures recommended by agencies and reviewers. This project is good for Yellow Pine, good for Idaho, and needed by the country.

Kevin lutes