Re: the Santa Fe National Forest: I oppose the Santa Fe Resiliency Project unless there is an Environmental Impact Statement as required by the EPA. The EIS should be specific about

- Where and how much you plan to burn and log ("thinning"),
- the effects of smoke and possible mitigation,
- the effects of drought and global warming on forest restoration,
- the effects of roads and high-impact logging (aka "thinning") on wildlife and water resources, and
- the plan of some real action to control "controlled burns" and out- of-control burns.
