In Montana, there are 67 distinct mountain ranges. There is room for all different types of outdoor pursuits. When it comes to backcountry skiing, there are and is certain terrain that is much more prevalent and conducive to human unpowered experience. Certain areas are much more well suited to skiing and scaling, than to open up access to all.

sleds have a place for sure, but... It is so much easier to gain access with the trottle of a thumb and ~~motor~~ motor. They can easily blast into and ruin an otherwise prime local ski area!

I believe we need an approach that allows some reserved areas just for skiing!
