Jennifer Berger:

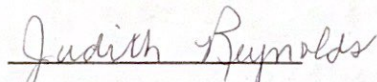

We would like to go on record as strongly favoring the proposed change to special use cabins in Alaska. The proposed multiple reissuance of ANILCA cabins on forest Service land is necessary.

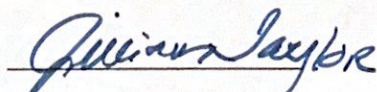

The "one and done" transfer policy was forced upon cabin owners without any input from the permit holders. As a result of the "one and done" policy, many owners of cabins allowed their cabins to deteriorate and become eyesores on forest service land. There is no resale value to a cabin that cannot be resold.

There is nothing in ANILCA that restricts the forest service from transferring cabin permits multiple times.

Sincerely,

Julius Reynolds
