Subject: Protect the wild character of the Chugach !

Alaskan families have benefited from current protections of this precious landscape. Changing that now, by allowing residential timber harvests, expanded motorized uses, manipulation of habitats, mining, and helicopter-assisted skiing and hiking, would hurt people, businesses, and habitat. Keep your longstanding promise to protect the wild character of the entire Wilderness Study Area until Congress finalizes its protection. This means maintaining and clarifying rules on all land-based motorized uses and preserving the area's current undeveloped and nonmotorized character. A wilderness recommendation would also protect our communities, especially those dependent on subsistence traditions and activities. Lands with wilderness characteristics benefit subsistence by protecting the lands and waters in order to support fish and wildlife resources. Subsistence activities are protected in Alaskan wilderness by the provisions of the National Interest Lands Conservation Act (ANILCA), including those reliant on snow machines, float planes, and off-road vehicles. The Forest Service should maintain current protections and recommend their perpetuation into the future. It's the best way to protect subsistence, commercial fishing, recreation, tourism, and great places that Alaskan families have enjoyed for decades. Please keep your promise to protect the Chugach National Forest for generations to come.

I drive through this beautiful land frequently as I head down to Clam Gulch and I always enjoy the untouched beauty of the area. I always comment to my husband 'I'm so thankful this isn't developed, which I just did today as we drove back to Anchorage, even when the weather is ugly(which it was today rain/snow/slush) I still find it beautiful. I've lived in Alaska 37 years and the Chugach is still as magical today as it was when I saw it for the first time, let's keep it natural and untouched by development! So future generations can enjoy it!

Sincerely,

C Silva
