Comments: Sleds groom ski trails. Skiers and sledders seem to get along. Why is government trying to divide us and create a stink? Job security! Be good stewards and pack out what ya pack in. Play well with thy fellow man. Wait for enough snow coverage to ride. Pay attention to avalanche reports. These areas have traditionally been used for recreation like they have been for years and now ya wanna change it? Pull your head out of thy ass, clean feces from eyes and take a look around! Regulate and allow riding when snow depths short it. Sledders make non motorized trails for Christ sake! Let's all learn to play in the same "snow box" and be kind to one another man. Don't poach trails sledsers. Don't be assholes skiers if it's open to sledders! Let's co exist and check the into we could have and the facilities and overall more enjoyable times. I'll be in Cantwell where I can only imagine y'all will soon be also...we don't play there. Be cool or get out. "b" is the way and I hope for yucks of anchorage and the valley this works cause it's gonna get crowded where I ride and I'll prolly sell evveything. Park service get your shit together and stop the non sense. Those areas wouldn't be accessible without a sled leading the charge! Let's come to an agreement on snow depth and load and off limits etc...you'll find me in Cantwell and if your cool is love to show ya some bitchin spots...been there since 91 folks. Pristine and impact resistance to sleds with proper snow depth.

Who wants to ruin their inexpensive sled in low snow? Now Cantwell and Summit will

Be over run and we will welcome our riding brothers with open arms. Like Summit lake also. Just be respectful and let's all get along man. Lots of area out there and we need to work and not hit the same jump 40 times with go pros x 20. Let's get back to what's real and ride with your brow and explore new areas with enough snow and not give the greenie tree huggers reasons or rides either!
