Comments: After learning more about the current proposals I would like to add to my previous statement that option "B" best represents my current use as it doesn't exclude the carter lake area an area I frequent every year either on cross country skis while using snow machine tracks or while learning to snow machine in a truly unique area with easy accessibility and an assortment of various terrain I hope to learn the skills to access areas like Nelly jeoun or twenty mile. I've used the snow machine access for access for skiing Johnson pass and hope to take my kids and there kids.

PS any one who has never see the chugiach national forest should realize that though it is ginormous it has little access and any loss of access will be hard on most residents of Alaska's Kenai peninsula
