Comments: HC5061 Sitka Alaska Dec. 8, '19 Imagine if you will: "A youngster with a poppy at her side gazing up at a majestic redwood tree; its probably the most wonderful thing that she has ever seen." Gentlemen; I strongly favor keeping the Roadless Rule proposal intact for the following reasons; -Of all the national forests, the Tongass is the most expensive to log; resulting in low stumage rates and low financial returns to both the U.S. Treasury and public. -Local citizens, by large majority, are not in favor of any rule changes. (See End.) -Critical Fish & Wildlife habitat will be adversely affected namely--big game winter ranges, salmon rearing streams and bald eagle nesting trees. -Presence of rare and endangered species are not usually fully evaluated. Thank you for the opportunity to comment on the Roadless Rule Proposal.
