I have hunted the Angelina NF and the Davy Crockett NF for nearly 20 years. I have see the impacts of hurricanes, droughts, and encroaching development on whitetail habitat. There are ~2% public lands in the State of Texas, and a small percentage of that is forest. National forests are a national treasure, and expereince and obligation for care that is handed down generations.

This is simply no need to develop oil/gas interests in the forest. We Texans can't even get to all the deposits in the Permian Basin. I absolutely reject the need to continue wildcatting in managed and virgin national forests. This is simply not in the public interest.

Thank you.
