Comments: Attached are two photos of the North Fork of the Nooksack River. The magnificent scenery in this part of our Northwest is natural and remote, and is irreplaceable. This area could be dramatically adversely impacted by increased flows as a result of logging in the basin above. The pristine area surrounding the river, and the entire watershed downstream could be impacted forever.

Migratory fish runs as well could be at risk as the Nooksack River has several species of "protected" fish.

Please do not do anything to put this area in any kind of compromised position. There are too few places like this left in the Northwest!

Thank You

Bob Banks
