Comments: While I am open to multiuse trails I am concerned about single track trails that are dangerous enough without adding two wheeled users. I ride a horse that is not afraid of bicycles per say but has been surprised by aggressive riders riding way to fast down hill, on blind corners and not yielding the right of way. The only way to ensure safety for everyone would be to make a program where you have to complete and earn a certificate of understanding the rules of the trail.

Some mountain trails are steep, narrow, blind corners and have severe drop offs. Not all trails should be open! Don't forget that a large amount of trails are opened and maintained by horse riders and disregarding their opinion isn't fair.
