Comments: Holland Lake holds a special place in the hearts of my family. My family has been coming here for generations. My father came here was a child. My parents spent their honeymoon in the Lodge. My first trip here was when I was two weeks old. Now, my family and extended family spend 10 days here a year camping. And my immediate family looks forward to a weekend every couple of years when we can spend a weekend together staying at the lodge. Being at Holland Lake is the highlight of my year, every year.

Hearing about the purchase of the lodge, it's cabins and the land around it, overwhelmed me with feelings of anxiousness. Anxious for the possibility that the Lodge could get a revamp that would allow for more space for guests to experience the wonders that Holland Lake has to offer. However, I was also anxious that a big company coming in could steal the wonder that so many of us have come to love about Holland Lake. This is a big moment for those of us who have found Holland Lake to be the place that makes us feel the most at home. I challenge the company that bought the lodge to create a space that stays true to the magical intimacy that Holland Lake has always sparkled with. The world doesn't need another Big Sky, Park City, Aspen or Vail. It needs history, intimacy, quiet, peaceful and serene places that people come to, when they need to escape the mundane and feel grounded. Holland Lake has provided that atmosphere for generations, so let's let that tradition continue and allow Holland Lake to shine with its inherent beauty. Remember, this is a project that affects the souls of those who love this place, it's not a project for money and millionaires to claim. I look forward to the positive changes that come Holland Lakes way.
