Comments: Holland Lake and Holland Lake Lodge are hidden gems in the Montana wilderness. It wouldn't be right to allow an out of state company to tear down the beautiful historic buildings only to replace it with a massive resort. My husband and I got married at the lodge this past summer and it was an incredible one-of-a-kind experience. While I know the purchase has already gone through. I think the the new owners should be required to leave the lodge intact and simply renovate the Cabins. Allowing them to tear everything down, clear the land, and build a massive structure will completely eliminate the magic of the area. It will attract hoards of visitors and make a once secluded and special place just another tourist trap. Don't do it!
