Comments: Guys, this is ridiculous.

We don't chip holds, we don't damage the wall, and we try our absolute hardest to be stewards of the outdoors. I can promise you that there is a very small amount of climbers found damage, and that we take care of our own and try to educate those who do wrong. We are not the group to be worried about.

I myself have been establishing climbs with and without bolts for a while. Personally, I chose to place bolts only when necessary, but I still love sport climbing and understand the need.

All this could do is make our sport either less safe or put under unfair restrictions.

I wish I could say more, but thank you for your considerations.
