Comments: I support all WY feedgrounds. I live in the upper green and witnessed the suffering and death of our mule deer and pronghorn herds. They weren't fed. Do you think the herd count now would be different if they were fed? I certainly do, as the elk herds had excellent winter survival rates last winter, so much so, that g&f was able to increase tags last year and add over 900 tags to the non resident pool this year, while deer and pronghorn tags were cut. Of course, proponents of feed ground closures will argue CWD. Do they figure elk will naturally decide not to congregate where they do end up migrating if there are no feed grounds? Kind of a ridiculous belief, as i find them year after year before they head to the feed grounds in herds. All through september, october and november...moving, grazing, drinking, bedding...in herds. They are not going to stop herding together because you shut down the feed grounds, they will die together. No different than the hundreds of pronghorn in the pinedale region that succumbed to pneumonia last winter. How could that many pronghorn have spread pneumonia if they weren't lumped together on a feed ground? It seems to me, light of the recent blm rock spring rmp, that this is an attempt of the federal government to gain control over a states resources. I also view as an attack on hunting and outdoor recreation as a whole. Environmental groups embedded in our very own organizations are pushing narratives similar to CO, WA and MT that i can only see as a step by step plan to eliminate hunting. I feel with WY being a right to hunt state under Wyoming Constitutional Amendment B that these recent steps taken by federal entities and liberal organizations to shut down feed grounds and "protect" 3.7 million acres of red desert without defining "protect" is a huge violation of the citizens' of WY's constitutional hunting rights. These steps are not in keeping with the amendments stated purpose of protecting and preserving hunting. One could argue this has already been violated with the gross mismanagement of the deer and pronghorn. Now you want the elk. Thats absolutely outrageous. Attached is just one of the pictures of the many piles of fur and feet i found shed hunting this spring. Its a family of deer. You can clearly see the mother had died while trying to protect her fawns. There were at least 2 fawns that i could tell. Maybe 3. When i hear "government plans" this is what i envision more of.
