Comments: Hello,

I am a first year Ph.D. student studying barred owls in Northern California at UW-Madison and it was brought to my attention that you are doing an overhaul of the Northwest Forest Plan, which I agree is now outdated and in need of an update. I previously worked for the forest service doing northern spotted owl surveys out of Roseburg, OR and I recently worked on a project for a climate change ecology class where we had to assess a species and give management advice. We worked on the three spotted owl subspecies and their systems, attached is the report we had written giving climate change projections, broad range shifts based on I naturalist data, risk assessments, and suggestions for mitigating the effects. I don't know if this would be helpful but I attached our report and you can do with it what you will.

Thank you for your time,

Amy Munes
