Comments: Holland Lake is an unspoiled paradise-surreal, epic and priceless. Additional development to the area would be devastating to the landscape, and a crushing blow to the successful land management model this country was built on. The magic and solitude of Holland Lake belongs to everyone, those who have come before us and those who will come after. It should not require privilege, or be viewed best from the balcony of a luxury villa. Montana's public lands are NOT for sale.
