Comments: I don't have a lot to say, other than i am in full support of this project. I spend the majority of my free time in forests of south central Montana. From Yellowstone park, north to Big timber, and the east and west sides of the paradise valley. So much of our forest needs to managed. People don't want to see forests burn, but when you mention logging, you get a whole portion of the population up in arms. The truth is, there's so much of our forest that's become a tinder box, so choked with fuels even animal largely avoid them. It's obvious, even to someone with no formal forestry education, vast areas of our forests arnt happy.
No one wants to see clear cuts, but I know that's not what this project is.
My only wish was that the area this project encompassed was larger, much larger. our forests need it.
This photo is just one area of many(near but not inside the project area) , its far from the worst ive walked
