Comments: I have an extended family that has enjoyed Lutsen ski area for years. However, we also appreciate the National Forest surrounding the area. I think expanding the ski area, which will require a huge amount of water to make snow for the new runs, is a bad idea and am against it. The area should be kept as National Forest for its ecosystem that supports both plant and animal wildlife, helps to capture carbon to combat climate change, and provides a recreation area for all. The rivers need the water, which should not be diverted for making more snow.
