Comments: Lutsen Mountains is by far the greatest ski area in the midwest. Doing anything to improve the size of accessible ski terrain and parking would benefit the state of Minnesota for its tourism as well as adding more fun and exploration for us skiers and snowboarders new to the sport or those of us who have been frequently visiting there for years. I have much admiration for this spot of land in the Superior National Forest, so please consider measures to block off important wooded areas in order to be protected, and take all steps to insuring native plant species thrive in any areas that will be logged if any improvements take place. Another concern is that trees openly exposed to snow guns seem to take a hit and deteriorate faster than normal, maybe allow new areas to have more canopy and be natural fresh snow only?
