BLM lands (adjacent to BRD)

Cattle at High Elevation, demonstrating their capacity to access alpine zones.

Cory Peak, NV (BLM), Wassuk Range

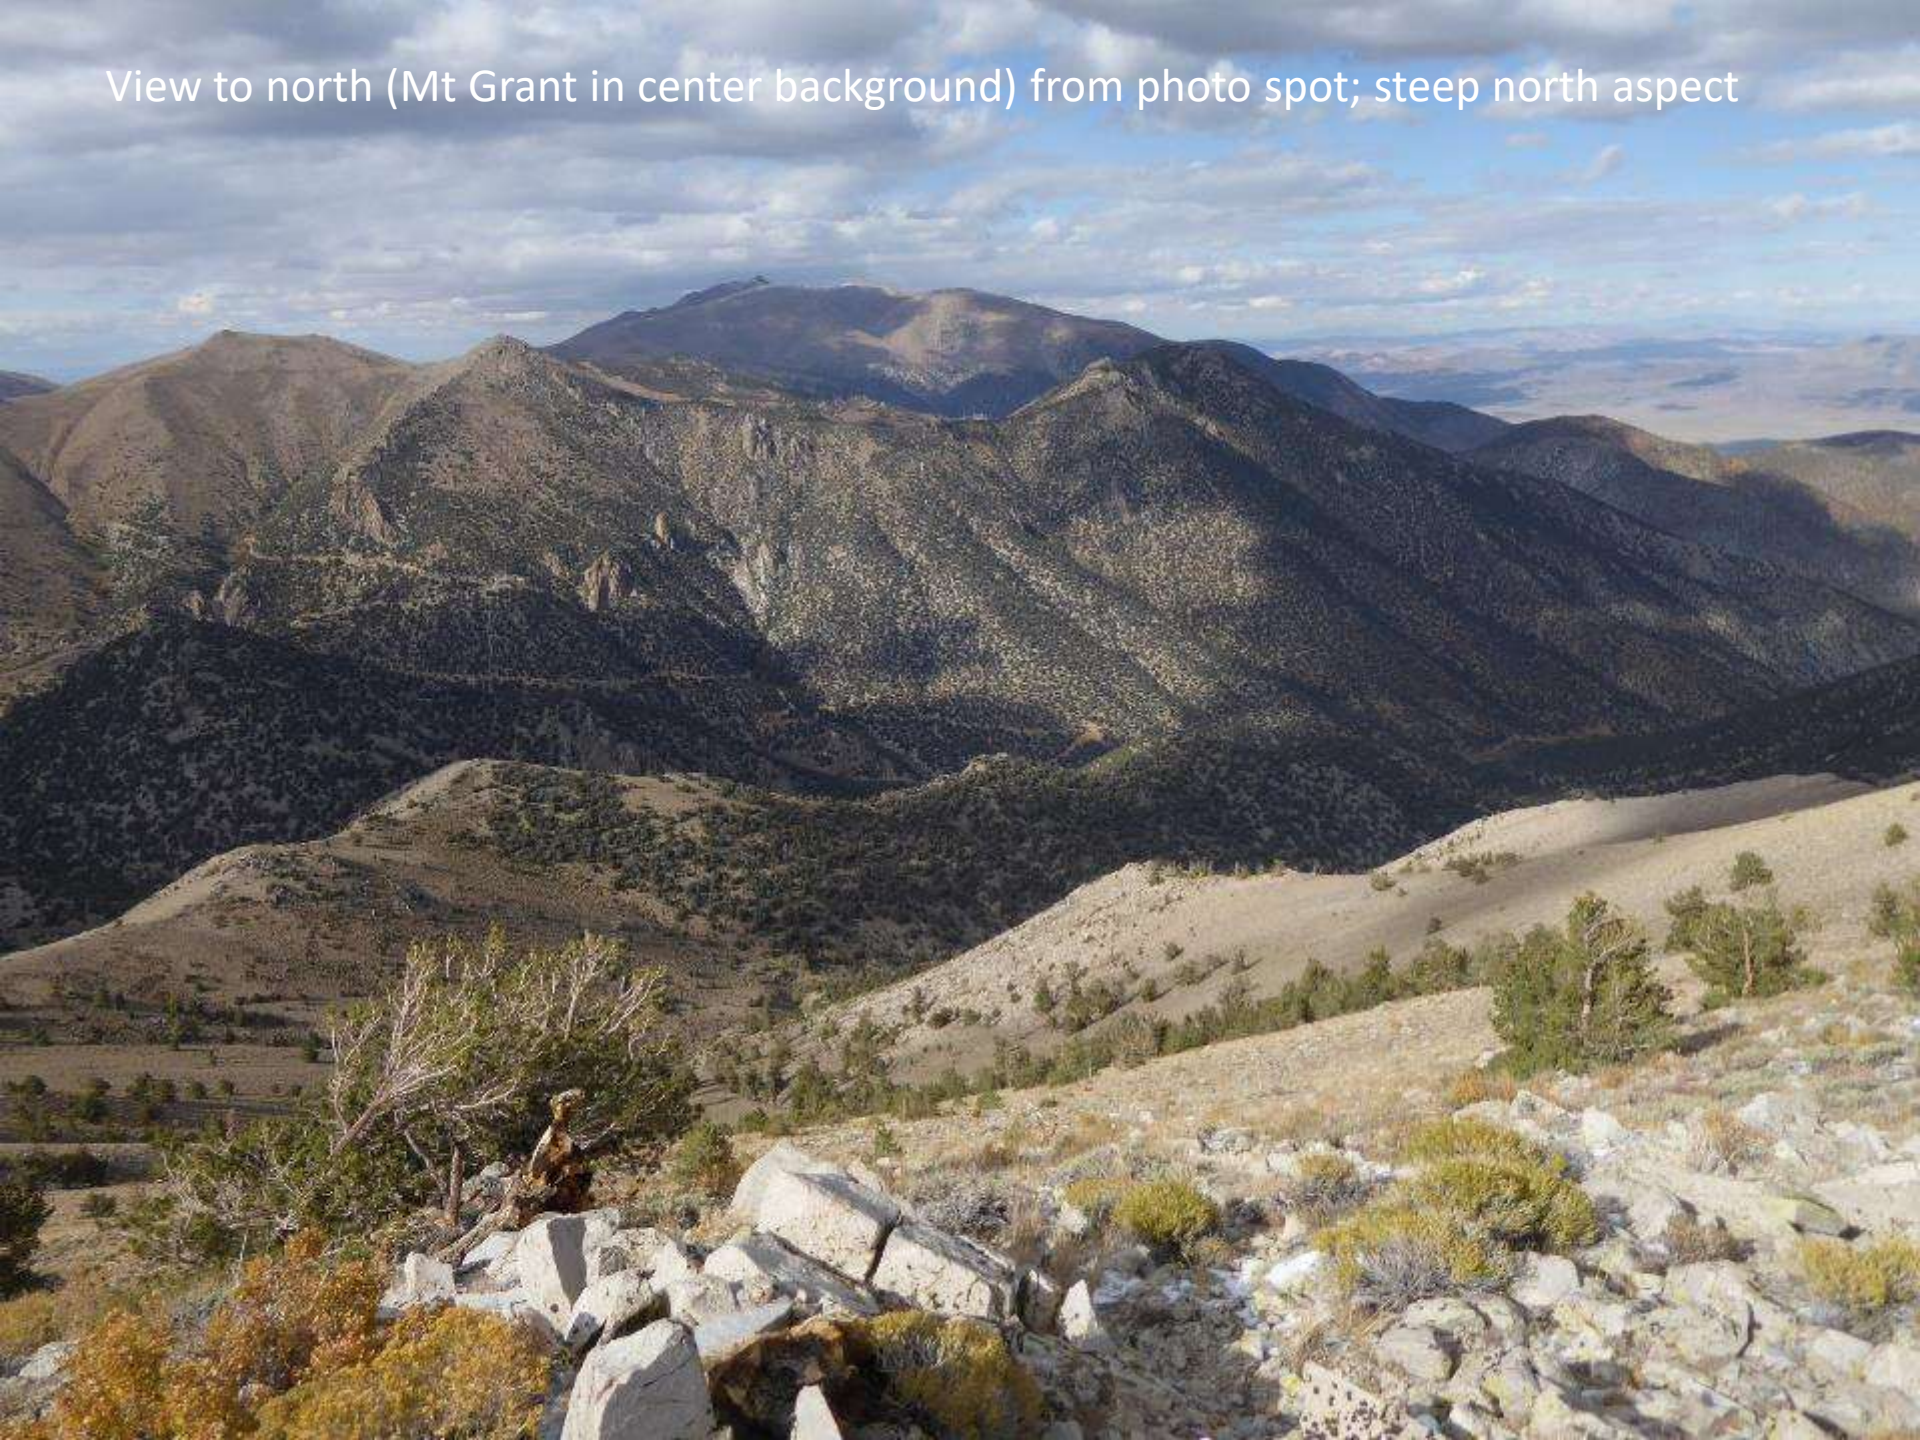

Sept 29, 2019, Connie Millar

Views of cattle taken on the ridge crest between Cory Pk (main summit) and the Electronic Station summit.

Main photo point: 38.45668, -118.77770, 10,019'

The access for cattle to this location is by their own volition, where they have to gain >2000' elevation via steep, rocky slopes. Browse on the high plateau is sparse alpine shrub, far less attractive to cattle than the meadows of the BRSP Dunderberg unit.

View east to electronic station summit; ridge crest where cattle were seen. Red arrow points to the animal shown close-up in the next slide

Other cattle on ridge

I saw six cattle total including two calves

Vegetation stature – sparse forage yet the cattle came here
