Comments: To whom it concerns: I am a respectable avid snowmachiner. This is really depressing on how we let others decide for us on how to enjoy our state and who gets to enjoy what areas. This is Alaska. It should be enjoyed by everyone. Ski, snowshoe, hikers, and snowmobiles, they should all be able to be accessed by everyone. Instead of more restrictions, how about offering to create more areas for deeper wilderness access and or at higher elevations for when we have insufficient snowfall to cover all vegetation. Most people moved here for that one reason... To get away from civilization and enjoy the backcountry. Please don't take that away from us.
