Comments: Ive lived in the Chugahc National Forest my entire life. I was born and raised playing in the backcountry with both motorized vehicles as well as just on foot. There should not a conflict of interest anywhere in regards to usage of land within the Chugach. Motorized vehicles allowed by the Forest Service when snow levels are adequate for for use should remain the same. Motorized users are not trying to take more areas away from skiers or borders of nature lovers of any kind. We abide by the rules when given appropriate areas to use and it should continue to remain the same.
