Comments: I am a local resident of anchorage Alaska, also a snowmobile enthusiast. I have been ridding snowmobiles for all 21 years of my life and have been competitively racing all over the lower 48 for six years. I may not use the chugach as much as my fellow riders but it is very important it remains open to the motorized use for a number of reasons. The chugach hosts a large area of ridding for the snowmobiles and motorized use for not only recreational fun but for Avalanche training to keep our friends and family safe while exploring the backcountry. Our large and growing industry is dependent on these areas that we ride in and call our home. The people of the snowmobiling industry have come a long ways, we have grown to respect the land and the people who allow us to ride here and we will continue to keep our land clean.
