Comments: I think separation of motorized and non motorized participants is unnecessary and unreasonable. Many skiers and snowboarders use snowmobiles to access more backcountry spots with steeper terrain and deeper snow, but those are exactly the same areas that the snowmobilers want to ride, but neither of them mind as long as they aren't stealing each other's lines. I feel like the kind of people I've met through these sports are mature enough to handle sharing a riding area and are glad someone else can have a good day of riding too.
