Comments: There is a need to keep some areas as pristine as possible for as long as possible. Your job is to know when and where it is possible and necessary to make changes not for the greater good of companies but for the earth and it's people. Changing the Chugach National Forest plan now doesn't seem to be worth the damage it can do to the environment and wildlife of the area. I have never seen this area but it is something I'd like to see and want my grandchildren to be able to visit in thier lifetimes nd not just read about it history books.
