Comments: I have had extensive travels in the chugach both working with locals and recreating. this area is a critical wilderness buffer protecting the area of south Alaska from too much overuse with modernization. I am not against modernization and development,if well thought out. this area needs to be wilderness,as it has been. urban pressure will creep up and destroy this wildernees buffer,damaging south alaska, with your new plan as written.please scratch your new plan and revert back to the wildernees designation. an example of your type of plan creating an overuse mess is the current and jacks fork river national scenic riverway in my home state of missouri.the allowed use of jetboats,atv use and subsequent development of house and businesses in the wrong places has created a political mess and serious fighting. thank-you. steve bozoian
