Comments: This roadless area is extremely important to Washington and it's citizens.

There are really great collaborations between conservation, recreation and forestry groups that are going to holistically protect the Colville and the Kettle Crest. Protecting this area will keep this momentum going.

Please make the effort to keep this amazing place protected for me and for those who do not have the opportunity to comment. The forests are what make Washington what it is and make it a desirable place to live and recreate.

Please recommend the following wild roadless areas on the Colville National Forest as wilderness: Profanity, Bald Snow, Hoodoo, Abercrombie-Hooknose, Salmo-Priest Adjacent, Thirteenmile, and Quartzite. I also ask that they be managed as designated wilderness, to maintain their wildness and suitability.

Thank you!
