To Whom It May Concern:

I support Alternative (P) with some modification.

Stubble height on grasses should be at the 4 inch level, not higher. Some grasses don't grow to 8 inches. Each allotment should be managed individually. Let ranchers and Forest Personnel make proper decisions for what is best on the allotments.

With wolves and cattle conflicts, we need timber harvesting to create more safety openings. Timber harvest is important to our forage availability because of its transitory nature.

I am a young rancher working with my family and I hope my kids as a family can keep ranching. Forest grazing is needed to support our private property.

Sincerely,

Kelsey Dawson
