Comments: Dear Mr. Klein:

I am a resident of Edwards Colorado writing in support of the proposed paved access to Berlaimont Estates inholding.

It seems reasonable that an owner of private property that is surrounded by USFS land, that is entitled to be developed for residential uses under local and State law, should be able to provide safe paved access to areas suitable for development on the property. The owner's proposed access alignment appears to be the most reasonable option as it generally follows existing USFS roads and avoids excessively steep terrain (that if developed could be an eyesore).

The paving of this access into the USFS could provide for additional recreational opportunities such as road biking, a sport with significant participation in the region.
