Brenda, forward #5 (#6?) - not sure if this counts as an objection.

I write to object to mountain biking in wilderness areas. Those of us who enjoy and appreciate the wilderness are constantly seeing these places slowly being whittled away as they become less wilderness and more influenced by man. That is not what the Wilderness Act meant to allow. There are plenty of places for those who are more interested in some thrill while in wilderness areas, and in so doing, take away some of the values others find in wilderness. The Wilderness Act was meant to prevent thrills in the wilderness accompanied by mechanical means. Just experiencing the wilderness is thrill enough for many. Please work to protect that.

Sincerely,

Henry Berkowitz
