Comments: NV has few places where there are trees water and outstanding outdoor opportunities. Don't be like UT and WY and destroy this gift by sticking oil wells all over the land. For what? Is oil really the future? I love to recreate out in NV because of the feeling of remoteness. I'm afraid myself and my friends would be once again forced to look for still another place to recreate. We do not care to drive all the way out to NV to see oil rigs. Like the embarrassment we have as we enter our national parks. I can just image what the rest of the world thinks when they see that. American's always making sure that companies always win regardless of what it means to future generations.
