Comments: This area is some of the best high backcounty hunting, fishing, backpacking and general recreation in the state. As such, any development proposed ought to offer the state very high returns in compensation for the disruption caused. The minimal availability and economy of fossil fuel production from the geologic source materials and trap units in this state and specific area suggest that if oil or gas is found, it will not be in amounts large enough to impact the state economy. As such, it seems unwise to degrade the existing public use for minimal and questionable gain. I oppose oil and gas exploration in the Ruby range.
