Comments: Nevada is one of the most geographically diverse states in the union. The Rubies and Lamoille Canyon are truly geologic marvels within the Great Basin. The bulk of Nevada's lands are already used (sometimes responsibly, sometimes not) for financial and military gains by huge foreign and domestic corporations, the US Government and a few small businesses. This is one of the last locations in the state that is not valued for its economic potential. In my view, the value of the Rubies and of Lamoille Canyon can not and should not be quantified. The value of this beautiful, unexpected, majestic alpine zone should instead be measured by the contributions it makes to peoples' spiritual and personal well being. Please do not allow this last unspoiled wilderness to be added to the list of Nevada's lands that are used for economic gain.
