Comments: With regard To the Cooke city area of the absaroke beartooth range in Custer gallatin national forest service. I am against any more wilderness in the Cooke city area. We already have one of the smallest recreational forest around. Our 6 or 7 square miles is to small. If people want to ski they can do that anywhere around here cause we have thousands of square miles in every direction. But taking more recreation forest from Cooke city and making more wilderness is pretty damn petty.

Also the absarokee Beartooth wilderness has enough wilderness and none should be added. Why can't you see what you have instead of taking what you don't and making it wilderness too. And never to be changed again.
