Comments: I write as one who has visited Nevada and plans to do so again. I write as the resident of a state ravaged by the extraction of gas and coal. Please add my name to those who strongly oppose oil and gas leasing. Lands supervised by the Forest Service should be free from these destructive operations. The overarching objection is that the extraction of the oil and gas, and their use, will directly contribute to climate collapse, with its attendant severe weather events. We will leave an economic burden and shorten the lives of our grandchildren. We wish we had been able to better preserve our mountains in Appalachia. Save yours.
