Comments: Blue Pool has grasped a lot of publicity over the last few years (deservingly so). However that has made the foot traffic more substantial therefore effecting the environment around it. If a larger parking lot is added to the area it would draw in more people. More people isn't always a great thing. More people could bring more garbage, waste in the water, etc. if the parking lot is added, would you have the resources to make up for all the extra foot traffic? Litter control, making sure the environment is still stable for all the wildlife inhabiting it? As someone from Oregon it is exciting to get more people involved in the outdoors. With that being said, it's also incredibly sad to see beautiful trails get ruined by people who don't care about nature.
