Comments: I join with environmental advocates, American Indian tribes, hunters, anglers and state game managers who oppose this project.

We need to preserve natural and pristine land, not turn it over to companies who do not act in the public's best interest.

We need to learn from the challenges facing efforts to clean up toxic sites from decades ago. We need to learn from recent disasters.

The government should be the public's advocate, not the advocate for the corporate interests at their expense.
