Comments: ruby mountains

I vote not to any exploration in this mountain range. I have hunted in the area, I have rode the ruby crest trail on horses, and just generally played in that wilderness. It needs to be preserved. The pressure to explore for oil in this area is most likely coming from the east coast by people that have not seen or walked in any of the area. They have no clue as to what the area looks like or do they care, or this would not be on the table. Let's put an oil rig in the middle of Washington DC and see what the response is. Please stop this destruction of our landscape.
