Comments: Ruby Oil and Gas

Dear Friends:

Every passing day brings innovations and increased efficiencies in the production, conveyance, and utilization of renewable sources of energy. More than ever before, exploration and extraction of oil or gas result in waste of our precious resources and costly attempts at remediation of the harm done to the land, water, and air.

Growth and other changes in population require a rapid, immediate shift in energy production to sustainable sources, as well as conservation and preservation of land and water. The physical and mental health of this and succeeding generations depend upon your wise choices to protect natural resources.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Charles Sharpe
