Comments: comments on Grand Mesa usage

It is my opinion that cattle grazing should be discontinued upon, or at least atop, The Grand Mesa. The Crag Crest trail presents a wonderful hiking opportunity that people from around the country enjoy. However, I have encountered cattle on this trail and found sections splattered with runny feces. Such conditions do not comport with an otherwise lovely "backcountry" experience. In this day and age, it seems anachronistic to permit a small number of people and their cattle to spoil such a special setting. Eliminating cattle from such areas will have no appreciable effect on the price of beef. Thank you for your consideration.
